5.2 Respect

Every individual shall be treated with respect regardless of age, gender, ethnicity, religion, disability, nationality, language, or social background.

5.3 Prevention

Preventing harm is more effective than responding after harm has occurred.

The Association therefore prioritizes proactive safeguarding measures.

5.4 Participation

Children, young people, and vulnerable adults should be listened to and encouraged to express their views whenever appropriate.

5.5 Confidentiality

Safeguarding information shall only be shared with individuals who have a legitimate need to know.

5.6 Accountability

Everyone associated with ADP shares responsibility for creating and maintaining a safe environment.

5.7 Non-Discrimination

Safeguarding protections apply equally to every individual without exception.

6. Rights of Children and Vulnerable Persons

ADP recognizes that every child, young person, and vulnerable adult has inherent dignity and equal rights, regardless of personal circumstances or background.

The Association is committed to respecting and promoting internationally recognized human rights, including the principles reflected in the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC), the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD), and other applicable international human rights instruments.

- receive information appropriate to their age and understanding;
- be listened to when safeguarding concerns arise;
- receive equal treatment regardless of gender, ethnicity, religion, disability, nationality, language, political opinion, or socioeconomic background.

Children and vulnerable adults shall never be treated as passive recipients of services. Whenever appropriate, they should be encouraged to participate in decisions affecting them, taking into account their age, maturity, capacity, and best interests.

The Association is committed to promoting accessibility and removing barriers that may prevent equal participation in its programmes and activities.

7. Standards of Behaviour

Everyone acting on behalf of ADP is expected to demonstrate the highest standards of professionalism, integrity, and respect when interacting with children, young people, vulnerable adults, colleagues, volunteers, beneficiaries, and members of the public.

Individuals shall:

The Association encourages a safeguarding culture based upon openness, mutual respect, accountability, and shared responsibility.

- using organizational authority for personal benefit.

Any behaviour that creates actual harm—or could reasonably create the appearance of inappropriate conduct—should be avoided.

Individuals are expected to exercise sound professional judgment even in situations not specifically addressed by this Policy.

9. Safe Recruitment and Screening

The Association recognizes that effective safeguarding begins before individuals commence their duties.

ADP is committed to implementing recruitment practices that reduce safeguarding risks while promoting fairness, transparency, and equal opportunity.

Recruitment procedures should, where appropriate, include:

For positions involving substantial contact with children or vulnerable adults, additional screening measures may be applied where permitted by law.

Appointment to any role within ADP does not remove the ongoing responsibility to maintain professional conduct and comply with this Policy.

10. Safe Working Environment

ADP is committed to creating environments in which all participants feel physically, emotionally, psychologically, and digitally safe.

The Association shall seek to ensure that activities are organized in ways that minimize foreseeable safeguarding risks.

11. Digital Safeguarding

As a digital-focused organization, ADP recognizes that safeguarding responsibilities extend beyond physical environments into online spaces.

Digital technologies provide valuable opportunities for education, communication, and collaboration; however, they may also create safeguarding risks that require appropriate management.

The Association is committed to promoting safe, respectful, and responsible digital engagement.

Individuals acting on behalf of ADP shall:

- use official communication channels whenever possible;
- respect privacy and confidentiality in online interactions;

- unauthorized recording of participants;
- sharing inappropriate content;
- online grooming;
- exploitation through digital platforms.

Online meetings involving children or vulnerable persons should, where appropriate, be conducted using secure platforms and in accordance with organizational safeguarding procedures.

Reasonable steps should be taken to ensure that online learning environments remain respectful, inclusive, and free from abuse.

12. Photography, Video and Media

Photographs, videos, audio recordings, and other media involving children or vulnerable persons must always be obtained, stored, and used responsibly.

The dignity, privacy, and safety of participants shall take priority over promotional or communication objectives.

ADP shall ensure that:

- appropriate consent is obtained before recording or publishing identifiable images where required;
- images are respectful and preserve the dignity of participants;
- media content does not expose individuals to unnecessary safeguarding risks;
- sensitive personal information is not disclosed;
- images are stored securely and accessed only by authorized individuals.

Photographs or videos should never portray children or vulnerable persons in degrading, humiliating, exploitative, or inappropriate situations.

The Association discourages unnecessary collection of personal images and encourages the use of group photographs whenever practical and appropriate.

Any concerns regarding the misuse of photographs, videos, or digital content shall be reported immediately.

13. Consent and Privacy

ADP recognizes the importance of protecting the privacy, dignity, and autonomy of every individual participating in its activities.

The Association shall ensure that personal information is collected, processed, stored, and shared only for legitimate organizational purposes and in accordance with applicable data protection legislation.

Participation in activities involving children or vulnerable adults shall, where required by law or organizational procedures, be based upon informed consent obtained from the individual and/or their parent, legal guardian, or authorized representative.

Consent should be:

- informed;
- voluntary;
- specific;
- understandable;
- documented where appropriate;
- capable of being withdrawn.

Participants shall receive information appropriate to their age and level of understanding regarding:

- the purpose of the activity;
- how personal information will be used;
- photography and media practices;
- safeguarding arrangements;
- reporting mechanisms.

Personal information shall only be accessible to individuals with a legitimate operational need.

The Association shall take reasonable technical and organizational measures to protect personal information against unauthorized access, disclosure, alteration, loss, or misuse.

Special care shall be taken when handling information relating to children, vulnerable adults, safeguarding concerns, health information, or other sensitive personal data.

14. Travel, Events and Educational Activities

Many ADP activities involve educational visits, conferences, youth exchanges, training programmes, workshops, community events, and international mobility.

Safeguarding responsibilities remain fully applicable during all organizational travel and events.

Before activities are organized, appropriate planning should include consideration of:

- safeguarding risks;
- participant supervision;
- transportation arrangements;
- accommodation;
- emergency procedures;
- medical needs where relevant;
- accessibility requirements;
- communication procedures;
- local safeguarding risks.

Whenever activities involve children or vulnerable adults, organizers should ensure that:

- emergency contact information is available;

- participants understand behavioural expectations;
- safeguarding responsibilities are clearly assigned.

Individuals acting on behalf of ADP shall avoid situations that could create actual or perceived safeguarding risks during travel.

Whenever practical, meetings with children or vulnerable persons should occur in observable environments rather than isolated locations.

International activities shall also comply with the safeguarding requirements of host organizations, funding bodies, and applicable local legislation.

15. Reporting Safeguarding Concerns

Creating a safe environment requires timely reporting of safeguarding concerns.

Every person acting on behalf of ADP has both the right and the responsibility to report concerns regarding the safety or well-being of children, young people, or vulnerable adults.

Safeguarding concerns may arise from:

- direct observation;
- disclosure by a participant;
- information received from another person;
- unusual behaviour;
- online activity;
- anonymous reports;
- suspected policy violations.

Reports may involve concerns relating to:

- abuse;
- neglect;
- exploitation;
- harassment;
- bullying;
- discrimination;
- inappropriate behaviour;
- online misconduct;
- grooming;
- breaches of this Policy.

Individuals are not expected to investigate allegations themselves.

Their responsibility is to:

- respond calmly;
- listen respectfully;
- avoid making promises that cannot be kept;
- document relevant information accurately;
- report concerns promptly through organizational procedures.

Reports made in good faith shall be treated seriously regardless of whether allegations are ultimately substantiated.

Deliberately false or malicious allegations constitute misconduct and may result in disciplinary action.

16. Incident Response Procedures

When safeguarding concerns arise, the safety and well-being of affected individuals shall always be the highest priority.

The Association shall respond promptly, proportionately, and professionally to safeguarding incidents.

Upon receiving a safeguarding report, ADP should, where appropriate:

1. assess any immediate risk;
2. ensure the safety of the affected individual;
3. preserve relevant information;
4. document the concern;
5. notify designated safeguarding personnel where applicable;
6. determine whether external authorities should be informed;
7. provide appropriate support to affected individuals;
8. conduct an impartial internal review where appropriate;
9. implement corrective measures.

Responses shall always consider:

- the best interests of the affected person;
- confidentiality;
- applicable legal obligations;
- procedural fairness;

- protection of evidence.

Where criminal behaviour is reasonably suspected, the Association shall cooperate fully with competent public authorities.

The Association shall also review whether organizational procedures require improvement following any safeguarding incident.

17. Confidentiality

Safeguarding information is highly sensitive and shall be handled with the utmost care.

Information relating to safeguarding concerns shall only be shared with individuals who have a legitimate professional need to know.

Confidentiality helps to:

- protect victims and survivors;
- preserve the integrity of investigations;

- encourage reporting;
- ensure procedural fairness.

Individuals handling safeguarding information shall:

- protect documentation from unauthorized access;
- avoid unnecessary discussion of cases;
- store records securely;
- comply with applicable privacy legislation;
- respect the dignity of everyone involved.

Confidentiality does not prevent reporting to competent authorities where required by law or where necessary to protect individuals from serious harm.

The Association recognizes that confidentiality must always be balanced against the duty to protect children and vulnerable persons.

Information shall therefore be shared whenever necessary to prevent significant harm or comply with legal obligations.

18. Support for Victims

ADP recognizes that individuals who experience abuse, exploitation, neglect, harassment, or other safeguarding violations may suffer significant physical, emotional, psychological, educational, social, or economic consequences.

- avoid actions that may cause additional trauma.

No individual shall be blamed, stigmatized, or treated unfairly for reporting abuse or seeking assistance.
